

Rebel groups

As with all the information I gather for this website, for the most part, when you look past or slightly "put aside" the ideologies that define these Rebel groups, there is a single common thread. The majority of people are working class and open to exploitation by the elites of their own cultures and geographical areas.

These varying ideologies divide, when if the elites and their systems of exploitation didn't exist, again, for the "most part," these groups would be able to co-exist in mutual compromise.

For example the Rebel group "Army of God," fight against abortion, which would not be needed (unless maybe through rape or incest) if it weren't primarily an economic issue. According to the Guttmacher Institute 57% of women having abortions are economically disadvantaged. Family incomes of less than $60K are having 86% of abortions. The higher your income the less likely you will have an abortion. The "choice" propaganda is another way to divide.
